

ENMC Company Forum Code of Conduct

When becoming a member of the ENMC Company Forum, the company accepts and adheres to the following rules:

- The choice of workshop topics and outcomes should remain at the discretion of workshop organisers and participants, independent from its sponsors.
- Not promote directly or indirectly its specific products or services via its membership.
- Not use the ENMC Company Forum to influence specific decisions or consensus with regards to future research and treatment guidelines or plans coming out of the ENMC workshops.
- Fully respect the independence and integrity of ENMC, its stakeholders and networks.
- Recognise the role of ENMC and its main member patient organisations in representing people affected by neuromuscular disorders, who, as such, are entitled to express critical views on any relevant matter.
- Not participate in ENMC workshops, because they are closed meeting, unless they are invited by the organisers of the workshop. In case of the latter, at least 2 or more companies will have to attend to avoid single company input and all other invited participants should agree on this beforehand.
- Understand that the membership to the ENMC Company Forum entitles a company to the benefits listed in this letter and to no other.

I have read and accepted the above code of conduct
